Nancy Wynne Hears That the Thomas Ridgways Have Purchased Newport Home on Bellevue Avenue. Dinner-Dance for Miss Helen Hope Montgomery

HEAR that the Tom Ridgways have bought Mrs. John Livermore's place season. Miss Jessie F. DaCosta returned on Wednesday from a several weeks' stay at Upper Saranac, N. Y. at Bellevue avenue. Spouting Rock Besch, Newport. The Ridgways have been up at Newport this summer, you how, at the Thayer cottage, which they rented. But it is evident they have decided to make Newport their permanent summer abode, for the Livermore is very attractive.

Bunny spent most of last winter in Europe and brought back some ravishing frocks. Her debut will be made at a garden party on October 14, at the Gearys' place in October 14. at the Gearys' place in

THERE will be lots of house parties down at Cape May this week-end. Mead Large has one and the Harrison Caners and Heck Wetherills and Joe Rollins, and lots of others. Naturally, every one wants to go down for the ball tonight, and it is certainly going to be one big occasion. Speaking of the Caners, I saw Mrs. Caner ine town on Wednesday, looking very well in a stunning frock of black crepe de chine. She and her husband have been staying up in Gloucester with the senior Caners, and returned to Cape May only this week. Mrs. Caner came up to town to shop, I suppose. Her dress town to shop, I suppose, Her dress had little openwork panels inset of light gray, and the four panels down chiffon. Her hat was a small affair of black chip straw and was edged with a quilling of cherry grosgrain ribbon picot edged, which was finished with long loops at the right side of the brim, falling about ten inches down. Around her neck on a narrow black ribbon was a large inveled parrot on a rounded perch. It was very claborate and unusual.

A PARROT makes me think of a real A parrot story I heard just the other day. A man I know went to stay with a friend this summer and after having tubbed and changed his linen descended to the library to join said friend, who conducted him to his conervatory, where on perches were two parrots. There were three canaries as well, a puppy cavorted about their lines and a large Persian cat slept in the sun. "Goodness!" exclaimed the tistor. "They are wonders, and how guiet they are quiet they are. I should think, howhave—and he was interrupted by one of the parrots, which remarked, "a helluva time."
